

Center for Dispute Resolution and Restorative Justice

Director of Mediation

The Opportunity

Resolve is opening a hire for a new position for a creative and energetic professional mediator. Directors of Mediation work collaboratively with the professional staff of Resolve to lead and develop programs in support of Resolve's mission. Resolve serves as the hub for dispute resolution services for southern Oregon. Our services include court-connected mediation in Jackson and Josephine County, Oregon Foreclosure Avoidance Program (OFAP) facilitations, mobile home dwelling communities, community, workplace, and family disputes along with facilitation services for community processes, retreats, and business and municipal operations.

Description of Duties

All Resolve staff work internally and externally to build and maintain relationships that bind staff together and create lasting relationships with the broader community, including social service providers, educational institutions, and governmental agencies. For Directors of Mediation this may include in-person presentations, specialized trainings, communication by phone and email, and participation in community functions. Volunteers can include AmeriCorps members, university student interns from Southern Oregon University and the University of Oregon's CRES (Conflict and Dispute Resolution Master's Program), and community members. Directors of Mediation mentor and manage volunteers and independent contractors to provide mediation services and group facilitation for individuals, schools, businesses, community groups, faith communities, civic organizations and municipalities. Directors serve as key leaders of the training team for the Fundamentals of Mediation and for continuing education for developing mediators.

Directors of Mediation have assigned primary administrative and supervisory responsibilities for selected areas of service while working cooperatively with other directors to assure all mediation and facilitation service obligations are met. This involves negotiation of fees for services, fulfillment of contractual obligations, the development and exploration of new opportunities, and gathering statistics to contribute to the organization's aggregated data and grant reporting.
